

No. The Live Chat Sessions have been designed to provide you with a direct and clear response to a specific question and I do not operate in generalities.

However, it may be that a specific question in one of my courses or channelling sessions or live shows turns into a more “general reading” by covering several topics rather than just one. In my experience though, people do not seek clarity via online questions or attend courses, channelling sessions and live shows unless they have a specific issue that they'd like to receive guidance on. Plus, my Guides will determine how much of a “general” reading takes place based on your specific needs.